Antipasti. This is my favourite Italian first course. If you can buy the meats and cheese from a specialist Italian deli, so much the better; alternatively, counters at supermarkets will cut you the correct quantities. You could serve it with some of the sharp Giardiniera Pickles. Then all it needs is some warm Italian bread (see related recipes below), and good, creamy butter.

A classic Pugliese snack – taralli are eaten throughout the day in Puglia, but they're particularly good alongside an aperitivo and some cold cuts of meat and cheese in the evening sun. They're easy to make too – just combine flour, salt, dry white wine and olive oil and knead into a dough, then shape into taralli , boil them and crisp up in the oven.
