“Literature, real literature, must not be gulped down like some potion which may be good for the heart or good for the brain – the brain, that stomach of the soul.

Literature must be taken and broken to bits, pulled apart, squashed – then its lovely reek will be smelt in the hollow of the palm, it will be munched and rolled upon the tongue with relish; then, and ...

In the academic year 1947-48, Nabokov taught the same three courses as in the previous year: Elementary Russian, Intermediate Russian, and the course on Russian literature in translation, in which he now famously began to rate the authors he lectured on, Tolstoy being awarded an A-plus and Dostoyevsky a C-minus. 27 1947 was also the year in which he began to take notes for the novel that would eventually become Lolita. In the autumn of that same year Nabokov received a letter from Morris ...
